Cantos Blancos was born in Pozaldez (Valladolid) in northwest Spain. This area is known for harmonious and splendid Verdejo's. This is a bright and rich wine that is ripe for making memories.

Background:

This wine stands out for its freshness. Cantos Blancos Verdejo is a bright wine, rich with sensitive nuances.

Rueda is located on the Duero river, northwest of Madrid, the Spanish capital. The Verdejo, used for this Cantos Blancos, is the autochthonous grape in this region and has been planted here since the 11th century.

The soil is rich in limestone and iron, which gives the land good drainage and makes it easy to work with. It is also rich in calcium and magnesium. The region elevates to 783 meters above sea level. The climate is continental, with very long, cold winters, short springs with late frosts, and dry, hot summers.

Tasting notes:

Brilliant and clear straw color with a touch of a green hue. Medium intensity, varietal character, white fruit notes (apple and pear) and herb notes (fennel and aniseed), elegant mineral end note.

Fresh and rich in nuances, Verdejo expression til the end, pleasant acidity, perfect for gastronomical pairings for the grape test is long lasting.
